B-29 Bombers Slug North Koreans After Enemy Seized Wonju Heights

TOKYO (AP)—Allied air attacks and artillery barrages drove off a 6,000-man North Korean force today after it had seized a dominant height and poured withering fire into American lines just south of Wonju.

An AP field dispatch said the two North Korean regiments at nightfall were disappearing into the hills.

With the flight of the Reds, Allied units moved back onto the commanding hill.

The Allies' northernmost line in Central Korea—extending in horseshoe shape within less than two miles of Wonju—remained intact.

Eleven B-29 bombers cascading heavy explosives in close support of the embattled Americans aided in routing the enemy. Ground and carrier-based fighters rocketed and machine-gunned the Communists and showered them with jellied-gasoline fire bombs.

The 2nd Division Artillery laid down a shattering barrage.

Part of Wonju, the field dispatches said, was wiped out by the air and artillery action.

But the American position near Wonju still was in grave peril.

Another Communist force swept wide around the American line and set up a road block.

Eggs Take Another Three-Cent Drop

For the fourth successive week, the price of eggs has taken a drop.

The price in Victoria today was down three cents a dozen on all sizes of Grade A eggs and two cents a dozen on B's.

Total decrease in price in the last month has been 18 cents.

The latest change will mean Grade A large eggs will retail at between 56 and 59 cents a dozen. Murray and two employees.

'At Least I Die Famous!' Guay Cries At Gallows

MONTREAL (BUP)—J. Albert Guay, a 33-year-old jewelry salesman who killed 23 persons in the most bizarre crime in aviation history, was hanged at Bordeaux jail early today.

Flanked by Quebec provincial police and a Roman Catholic priest, the once-dapper Guay mounted a gallows in the jail's inner quadrangle shortly after midnight to pay for the murder of his unwanted wife, Rita, Sept. 9, 1949. Mrs. Guay and 22 other persons died when an airliner crashed shortly after taking off from Quebec City.

Guay walked unassisted to the on a vital supply highway 31 miles southeast of Wonju.

This Red force, possibly 20,000 strong, drove a deep wedge in the Allies' central Korean positions protecting the Taejon-Taegu withdrawal route for the 8th army toward the old Pusan beachhead.

Brisk fighting swirled north and west of Tanyang, a rail terminal 37 miles southeast of Wonju.

Roid Yields $900

VANCOUVER (CP)—Two armed men held up three beer parlor employees here about midnight and escaped with $900.

The money was being taken from the York Hotel beer parlor through a rear lane to be placed in the hotel safe when the bandits accosted hotel parlor manager Bill Roberts and two employees.

Anglers Unite In Protest As Logging Scars Malahat

By ROY THORSEN

Voice of the 941-member Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association was raised in protest

Thursday night over logging operations which, it is claimed, will kill Saanich Inlet as a natural beauty spot.

The sport fishing club is the first local organization to criticize the operations along the scenic wonder east wall of the inlet.

Hope was expressed that other Victoria and island organizations will immediately add their voices to a campaign to stop the destruction.

It is believed the speedy action with the government might yet stop the destruction.

One member reported the loggers working there had told him the same "balding" process will carry on right through from Dinner Island north to McKenzie Bay.

Already there is a bad blot from logging done so far.

"What should we do to stop this?" newly-elected president Stan Ball asked George I. Warren, Victoria and Island tourist publicity commissioner.

The tourist chief suggested a strong delegation of the directorate meet Hon. E. T. Kenney, Minister of Lands and Forests, in protest.

READY TO EXCHANGE

This will be done, Saanich M.L.A. Arthur Ash will be asked to accompany the delegation.

Ray Ritchie said the head of the logging gangs had told him that he would turn the land over to the government if the government will make it right with him such as giving him other timbered land to operate on.

One member suggested the government should be asked to buy the land.

"I've seen that beauty spot pictured as far east as Nova Scotia and what's happening now will leave a terrible mess in its wake," said Ball.

Wood from the operation in the inlet is already making trouble for fishermen, both for lines and propellers.

'FIREBALL' SMASHES DOWN AS MELBOURNE COOLS OFF

MELBOURNE (Reuter)—A fireball meteorite shattered stores in an outlying Melbourne suburb when the city's heat wave broke today.

Lightning and wind left a trail of damaged roofs and trees.

The temperature quickly dropped 25 degrees from 104.

Eye-witnesses said the "fireball" came from the sea. There was a vivid flash and roar. Black smoke rose from four stores.

Corrugated iron and planks were lifted 45 feet into the air. Windows caved in to the freak cyclone which banked up floods in the streets.

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (Reuter)—Six more tremors shook the area around New Zealand's earthquake town of Cheviot today.

Townsfolk, fearing fresh rumblings after the full blast of the earthquake hit the area Thursday, had spent an uneasy night—most of them outdoors.

Thames May Flood

LONDON (Reuter)—Rescue teams stood by along the upper reaches of the Thames today as the swollen river threatened to flood seven towns.

Even though the rain of the last few days had given way to blue skies, the river was still rising and spreading flood waters across low-lying areas.

Danger spots were Oxford, Reading, Abingdon, Henley, Maidenhead, Windsor and Staines. People there were warned to stand by to evacuate if the floods got worse.

Ray Ritchie said the head of the logging gangs had told him that he would turn the land over to the government if the government will make it right with him such as giving him other timbered land to operate on.

One member suggested the government should be asked to buy the land.

Mother, Slayer, Too, Comforts Doomed Son

OSSINING, N.Y. (AP)—A scared 20-year-old youth died in the electric chair last night after his mother bade him an 11-hour goodbye and then left Sing Sing's death house to go back to prison herself.

The mother—a convicted slayer, like her son—was brought from another prison for a brief reunion with the condemned man, Harley G. Lamar.

Divorces Silent Hubby

DETROIT (UP)—Mrs. Gladys D. Hayes won a divorce today after testifying her husband didn't speak to her on 223 days in 1950.

Between 8 and 8 voters will ballot for two candidates for reeve, Sydney Pickles and Percy E. Thorp, and will choose four of five candidates for council seats. They are Lorne Thomson, Ray Lamont, Albert Doney, Harold Andrew and Willard W. Michell.

'BLIZZARD DAY' ANNIVERSARY

Victoria's mild winter continued today as the first anniversary of "Blizzard Day" nears for the lower mainland.

One year ago next Sunday Victoria saw a blizzard and a zero reading on thermometers along with many other lower mainland areas. Jan. 14, 1950, was the day snow and cold reached a height during last winter.

Rumors Of Shooting Across Border Heard

By STANLEY RICH

HONGKONG (AP)—This Crown Colony adjoining Communist China had a collective case of war-fear nerves today.

Officials ordered all British subjects—men and women—to be prepared for immediate military call and the rumor-monger began churning out wild reports.

There were these developments:

1. The government said all British subjects above age 17 are required to register for the service of the Empire by Feb. 1. It applies to Eurasians and Chinese born in Hongkong as well as Europeans.

2. Malcolm Macdonald, Britain's high commissioner for southeast Asia, said British dependents would not be advised to evacuate Hongkong—as American families have been.

3. Chinese newspapers carried front-page reports that bugle-blowing Chinese Red troops traded shots across the border with Hongkong police. The reports were denied by Hongkong police, who said the "bugle-blowing troops" were several Chinese trying to sneak into the colony.

NAVAL RECALL

4. A private commercial radio station said all Royal Navy men ashore had been ordered to report back to their ships. An R.A.F. spokesman said only the crew of one frigate had been called back to its ship to search for a missing Spitfire fighter plane.

MacDonald said, "British authorities do not anticipate any developments in the near future which would expose Hongkong to danger. They are not contemplating now giving advice to dependents of British subjects, whose presence in the colony would not be necessary to its security in case of trouble, to evacuate."

He did not mention the draft plan.

A government spokesman said the decision was made "in the light of the world situation," but that no immediate call under the emergency ordinance is expected.

REPORT RED MASS

Uneasiness has grown in Hongkong with reports that the Chinese Communists have massed 45,000 soldiers on the border less than 80 miles to the north.

J. L. Murray, director of Hongkong publication, insisted that the draft plan was "not inspired by any immediate deterioration of which we have any special knowledge."

'World's Crazy, Not Us,' Says Freed Boy Cultist

KEREMEOS (CP)—Some of the "Children of Light" stepped outside Wednesday to a world they never expected to see again.

By tonight, the cottage where the religious sect members spent more than 17 days in a wait for Doomsday or a message from God may be vacated for its owner.

They face a grim future on the "outside." In order to be ready for the heavenly manifestation they expected to experience, the group, numbering 35, sold worldly possessions at sacrifice prices.

Some sold fruit ranchlands for a few dollars an acre, while others abandoned their homes after selling furnishings and clothing.

The first to quit the cottage retreated Wednesday were several children, long overdue from their studies, and several adults. They quit the buildings as summates under the School Attendance Act were about to be served on the parents.

As afternoon classes were starting, five of the eight school-age children were driven behind the school. The children ran into their classrooms, which they haven't seen since before the Christmas holiday.

But if the sect members had their way, most say they would stay indefinitely in seclusion.

Bobby McLean, snatched from the cottage by his mother three days ago, said he would still be

SECRET DREW PEARSON TIPS UNDER PROBE BY U.S. ARMY

WASHINGTON (AP) — The army said today the Drew Pearson column of Dec. 30 contained "quoted excerpts from classified (secret) messages," and an investigation is being made.

In a letter to Senator Joseph McCarthy (Rep.-Wis.), Army Secretary Frank Pace also said the matter is being submitted to the Judge Advocate-General of the Army. The Judge Advocate-General is the army's top legal officer.

Pace made the letter public. It was in response to a demand from McCarthy to know whether material in the Pearson column was in fact quoted from secret messages as Pearson said. McCarthy said in a Senate speech last week that if Pearson had quoted secret messages he had given aid to foreign countries in efforts to break U.S. codes.

COMMONWEALTH LEADERS SEEK STALIN, MAO VIEWS

France Expresses Concern Because China Included In Her Place On Proposed Parley

LONDON (AP) — Prime Ministers of the Commonwealth announced tonight they "would welcome any feasible arrangement" for an exchange of views with Prime Minister Stalin or Chinese Communist leader Mao Tse-tung.

In a joint declaration issued at the end of a nine-day conference here, the prime ministers said:

"We do not seek to intervene in the affairs of the Soviet Union or China or any other country; we are simply determined to retain the mastery of our own affairs without fear of aggression."

The statement said:

"We are both jointly and severally pledged to peace. This is not merely a pledge given to other nations; it is solemnly given to our own."

The statement said settlements with Germany and Japan should be made with speed."

It added: "We must do what we can to understand those who appear to differ from us" and said the prime ministers would welcome any "feasible arrangement for a frank exchange of views" with General Stalin and with Chinese leader Mao Tse-tung."

FRENCH PROTEST

Earlier, France was reported to have expressed concern today to Britain because she was left out of a proposed big-power parley to discuss a Far Eastern settlement.

Proposals for such a conference were put forward to the political committee of the United Nations Thursday. They were hammered out largely by Commonwealth prime ministers who have been conferring here since last week. A five-point plan for settling the Korean war included a call for talks among interested powers, among whom the United States, Britain, Russia and Red China were to be included, with Chinese leader Mao Tse-tung."

ONE WOMAN'S DAY

By NANCY HODGES

BATTLE OF BALTINGLASS

A ONE WHO has always followed with interest the progress of women in their various careers, public and otherwise, I have been watching with baited breath the outcome of a battle of the sexes that has been waged in a little Irish village named Baltinglass, Eire—and anyone knowing the Irish knows that when they wage a battle they certainly wage it to a fare-you-well.

This particular fight was over the postmastership, as to whether it was to be held by the present incumbent, a woman whom the villagers favored, or should go to the man whom the postal authorities favored. And before it was over it had stormy repercussions in the Irish parliament.

HOW IT STARTED

IT ALL STARTED in mid-September, when the government decided to move the post office from the old spot in the County Wicklow village to a new site across the road, and to appoint a Mr. Michael Farrell postmaster in place of 47-year-old Miss Helen Cooke, whose family had run the post office since 1880.

The 800 inhabitants of Baltinglass rose up in arms when the proposed change was announced, rallying to the defence of the Cooke tradition. For six days they picketed the post office, preventing engineers from transferring the telephone cable to Mr. Farrell's house which was to be used as the new P.O. The irate villagers, a British major-general (retired), defied the seven policemen, one sergeant and a superintendent. In the meantime, an invading force from a nearby village, came into the fray on Farrell's side.

TAKEN TO PARLIAMENT

THE MATTER became so serious that it was brought up in the Eire parliament. While Miss Cooke and a delegation of her Baltinglass supporters watched from the gallery, a deputy questioned the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs about the proposed appointment of a man to her job, challenging the action.

When the minister rose to reply, bedlam broke out. Cheered on by the Baltinglass contingent, the deputy accused the minister of lying. Other deputies shouted across the chamber and exchanged blows; shrill cries of "Police, police!" were heard. Finally the session closed in wild disorder, the minister stalking out with his statement unread.

BEJABERS AND BEGORRAH!

NEEDLESS TO SAY, the leaders of the protest rubbed their hands with glee and their spokesman sounded the rallying cry: "We will fight on. Back to Baltinglass to guard the cable!" And back they went to renew the fight for Miss Cooke, ready to take on the Farrell faction, police, parliament and anybody else who cared to join in.

For another six days the 800 villagers picketed the old post office, guarding the telephone cable manhole in relays to prevent its transference across the road. Then on Dec. 12, the 12-day-old battle took a new turn.

POLICE REINFORCEMENTS

EARLY IN THE DAY an air raid siren wailed in the Wicklow village. A lone villager on sentry duty had sighted a force of 60 police in 12 cars sweeping down the road from Dublin. Within seconds 20 handbells were ringing, calling the men and women of Baltinglass to the defence of Miss Cooke's position.

Over 500 angry villagers awaited the advancing police reinforcements. But the 60 police formed up in a solid phalanx, shoulder to shoulder, while the engineers worked to the accompaniment of shrill invective from the defenders. So taut was the situation that the parish priest appealed to the police to postpone the cable-moving operation—but in vain.

SHUT UP SHOP

FIGHTING MADLY, the villagers hindered the engineers and the police but finally the police joined arms and advanced on them, sweeping them out of the way. Two and a half hours later the cable was connected to the draper's shop-post office of Michael Farrell—and Miss Cooke's partisans had lost the day.

Miss Cooke, shutting up shop, announced she would try for a job in England. But the battle of Baltinglass is not yet over. The 49 telephone subscribers, including the local "boobie," decided not to use their telephones as a protest—fighting Irish to the last!

Smoking-In-Stores Ban Not Likely Here

ONLY if store owners demanded it, would the City Council consider changing its fire protection by-law prohibiting smoking in department stores, Mayor George said Thursday.

He was commenting on a report that Toronto proposed such a regulation. One store manager said smoking in his store "never amounted to any kind of a menace."

FISHERMEN FINED

DUNCAN—Two Victoria men, Archibald and Patrick Kerr, were each fined $10 plus costs when they appeared before Magistrate Tisdall in Duncan court charged with fishing in non-tidal waters without proper licenses.

FLOORS GLEAM

GENERAL ELECTRIC Floor Polisher

Orphanage Operations Marked By $8,258 Loss

Lack of exemption from federal sales tax, said he welcomed the news for the savings which he felt would be effected.

"In due time, however, I received papers from Ottawa with a questionnaire and found to my dismay we were not eligible as we received no grants or financial support from the government," he said. "In view of our expenditures during the past year, this was quite a loss for us."

MORE SUBSCRIBERS

"A steady increase in the number of subscribers to the home," was termed "gratifying" by Mr. Staneland. The home's operation is dependent on its subscribers.

He expressed appreciation for the work of the Lions, Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs, Lieutenant-Governor Clarence Wallace and Mrs. Wallace, Chamber of Commerce, radio stations, Ladies' Auxiliary and Junior Ladies' Auxiliary.

He paid tribute to the staff and to the following:

Dr. Frank Bryant, honorary physician for the past 35 years, and his associate, Dr. D. A. Hewitt; Joseph Clearihue, K.C., honorary solicitor for 30 years; Reginald Genn, honorary auditor for 25 years; Dr. A. J. Saich, honorary dentist for four years.

"All these gentlemen are outstanding in their professions and have given their time and unselfish service," said Mr. Staneland.

The board of managers of the home re-elected were: Douglas S. Tuck, honorary secretary; R. H. Shanks, honorary treasurer, and Rev. Canon George Biddle, honorary chaplain.

New Executive Of Land Surveyors

World War II Veterans Become Land Surveyors

The year 1950 marked the first time since the start of World War II when a group of young men qualified for admission to the Corporation of B.C. Land Surveyors.

That was the fact brought out by Cyril Jones, city engineer for Victoria, in his address as retiring president of the surveyor's corporation, which today winds up its annual two-day convention here.

Mr. Jones observed 11 new members had been taken into the profession's ranks this year. He said the increase was most encouraging.

There now are 125 practicing land surveyors in this province and 25 non-practicing members of the profession.

Attending the annual meeting at the Empress Hotel are nearly 100 of the members.

The election of officers for the current year was concluded Thursday night.

G. K. Burnett, of New Westminster, was elected president to succeed Mr. Jones, and F. C. Underhill, of Vancouver, was elected new vice-president.

H. S. Beckton, Victoria, was returned as secretary-treasurer.

Named to the executive board were Duncan Cran, Fort St. John; A. J. Butterfield, Victoria, and W. R. Young, Victoria.

F. O. Morris, Surveyor-General in B.C., was named an ex-officio member of the board.

Thames May Flood

LONDON (Reuter) — Rescue teams stood by along the upper reaches of the Thames today as the swollen river threatened to flood seven towns.

Even though the rain of the last few days had given way to blue skies, the river was still rising and spreading flood waters across low-lying areas.

Danger spots were Oxford, Reading, Abingdon, Henley, Maidenhead, Windsor and Staines. People there were warned to stand by to evacuate if the floods got worse.

May Arbitrate On Firemen's Wages

Rejection Of City Offer Expected To Bring Matter Before Board

Arbitration proceedings loomed today for city firemen who turned down an alternate proposal of City Manager Cecil C. Wyatt.

The proposal would have increased the city's payment into superannuation from 7 to 9½ per cent and the men's payment from a minimum of 4 as at present to 6 per cent. It would also grant two additional statutory holidays, bringing the total to nine.

Marshall Plan Nations Learn Of New Pact

PARIS (Reuter) — Foreign and finance ministers of the 18 Marshall Plan countries of western Europe today learned details of a big-three agreement to handle distribution of the free world's vital raw materials.

The agreement, it is understood, involved the immediate creation in Washington of a temporary central group.

The proposal, drawn up by Britain, the United States and France, was communicated to ministers attending a meeting of the governing council of the organization for European economic co-operation.

The proposal, according to usually reliable quarters:

1. Urged early action for certain unnamed commodities.

2. Called for the creation of international commodity groups on which the most interested producer-consumer nations would be represented. These groups would recommend action in the case of each commodity to expand production, increase availability, conserve supplies and assure most effective distribution.

3. Early consultation with interested governments with a view to membership of the central group.

Racial Murder Law In Effect

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The U.N. Genocide Convention went into effect today.

The 19-article convention, branding racial and religious extermination or persecution as international crime, was adopted unanimously by the 1948 General Assembly in Paris. It since has been approved by 27 states. Canada and the United States are among states which have not yet ratified the convention.

The effective date of the covenant, an outgrowth of the mass extermination of millions of Europeans by the Nazis, came today — the 90th day after the 20th instrument of ratification or accession was deposited with the United Nations.

'FIREBALL' SMASHES DOWN AS MELBOURNE COOLS OFF

MELBOURNE (Reuter) — A fireball meteorite shattered stores in an outlying Melbourne suburb when the city's heat wave broke today.

Lightning and wind left a trail of damaged roofs and trees.

The temperature quickly dropped 25 degrees from 104.

Eye-witnesses said the "fireball" came from the sea. There was a vivid flash and roar. Black smoke rose from four stores.

Corrugated iron and planks were lifted 45 feet into the air. Windows caved in to the freak cyclone which banked up floods in the streets.

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (Reuter) — Six more tremors shook the area around New Zealand's earthquake town of Cheviot today.

Townsfolk, fearing fresh rumblings after the full blast of the earthquake hit the area Thursday, had spent an uneasy night — most of them outdoors.

SECT AWAIT'S 'WORD'

World's Crazy, Not Us, Freed Youth Declares

KEREMEOS, B.C. (CP) — The "message from God."

The children left the hideout Thursday after the school board threatened to serve summons on the parents for keeping the youngsters out of school.

Six school-age children still remained in the farmhouse where for 18 days they have awaited the end of the planet earth or some heavenly revelation.

The remaining two children are to return to school Monday on the promise of their cultist parents.

But if the sect members had their way, most say they would stay indefinitely in seclusion.

Bobby McLean, snatched from the cottage by his mother three days ago, said he would still be there if "I hadn't been dragged out."

"People think we're crazy or something," the 16-year-old said. "It's not us. It's the rest of the world."

In Paris the Canadian prime minister hopes to see President Vincent Auriol and Premier René Pleven.

The exact number of members still remaining in the cottage with Mrs. Grace Carlson is not known.

Arms Program Boost Planned By Britain

LONDON (Reuter) — British defense planners have drawn up a plan for a boosted rearmament program, to cost considerably more than the £3,600,000,000 ($10,800,000,000) allocated for defenses last summer and autumn, it was authoritatively learned today.

Their plan must await the report of financial experts, now working urgently on a scheme for reallocating Britain's financial resources to meet the strain of the new defense effort. When this is complete, the two plans will be merged.

Prime Minister Attlee is expected to announce Britain's proposals to meet her Atlantic defense commitments soon after Parliament reassembles Jan. 23.

The speed-up of the armaments drive will be pressed forward with the greatest urgency.

Production Is The Answer

THE BEST REMEDY FOR RISING PRICES, says the Canadian Manufacturers' Association in a letter to Mr. St. Laurent, is the production of more goods. This should be obvious enough but how many people realize it?

Prices are only paper indicators of physical facts. When they drop they indicate that the physical goods in production are greater than the public's purchasing power. When they rise they indicate that purchasing power temporarily exceeds the supply of goods. And when some prices rise and some fall the faithful indicator tells the productive machine what particular goods the public wants in greater quantity and what goods it wants in smaller quantity.

In every Canadian household prices are blamed for the present high cost of living but it would be just as sensible to blame the barometer for a stormy day. As the barometer records changes in the physical climate, prices record changes in the economic climate.

Our trouble at present is that we have more purchasing power than goods to satisfy it and presently will have still less goods as they are channeled out of consumption into weapons. Under these conditions prices are bound to rise as surely as the needle of the barometer changes with the weather. For the Government to attempt to control prices without touching the cause of prices would be as futile as trying to stop a Pacific gale by tampering with the instruments in Gonzales Observatory.

Cost Of Survival Going Up

ACCORDING TO THAT RELIABLE reporter, Mr. Kenneth Wilson, of The Financial Post, the Canadian Government realizes that its billion-dollar defence budget for the next fiscal year will be quite inadequate. It will have to be increased. Mr. Wilson thinks, by 50 per cent during the 12 months starting April 1 next.

Even then it would be far below the United States budget in proportion to our Canadian resources. The United States is proposing to spend $42 billions on defence in all forms out of a gross national production which totaled $270 billions in 1950, but the defence budget is rising by the hour and may well reach or exceed $50 billions in the fiscal year beginning July 1. Thus the United States will devote nearly 20 per cent of its entire wealth to defence, whereas a Canadian defence budget even raised to $1.5 billions would represent about nine per cent of our national production, now running at the rate of $17.5 billions per year.

The inadequacy of the present billion-

The basic cause of high prices being shortages of goods in relation to the public demand for them, the nation's greatest economic need today is to produce more goods. Every policy in government, in management and in the labor unions which discourages production inevitably raises prices. At this time, more than ever, government, management and labor should consider whether their actions are designed to increase or retard production. Examination will show that throughout the structure of North American industry production is being retarded by various public and private practices. It is the consumers, the vast, unorganized mass of North Americans, who pay for these practices in the prices which reflect them.

The industrial machine of America is now producing more goods than ever but as still more money is in circulation we have inflation. The productive capacity of America can't be increased still further.

It was virtually doubled during the last war. While the task will be more difficult now—since we lack the idle resources of manpower and machinery which could be quickly mobilized in 1939—America can vastly expand its output of goods by higher efficiency, by the full use of the machine, by the construction of better machines and by working harder. If we do not work harder we shall have to live harder because we shall have to get along with an unnecessarily small supply of goods at higher prices.

Loose Ends

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

DURING the Cariboo gold rush a professional card sharper was haled before Judge Begbie who squeaked from the bench: "Fined $50." To this the prisoner replied:

"That's all right, judge, I've got $50 in my hip pocket." And the judge added: "And six months in jail. Have you got that in your hip pocket?"

Of course you have heard that story. Everyone has. But observe how it has grown, proliferated and spread to the dimensions of a universal American myth—British Columbia's unique gift to American mythology. Some 20 years ago the late Mr. Justice Murphy of the B.C. Supreme Court and a native of Cariboo was asked to make a speech to a gathering of lawyers in Portland. Not knowing what to say, he consulted his old friend, Mr. Harry Pooley, the uncrowned king of the kingdom of Esquimalt, who had known Begbie well three score years ago. Mr. Pooley told Judge Murphy the story of the card sharper and Judge Murphy told it in Portland. A week later Mr. Pooley was listening to his radio and heard the story repeated by a lawyer in Nevada. Begbie's remark to the prisoner was attributed to a local American judge in Colorado.

BEFORE long half the judges of America were credited with Begbie's memorable verdict. Presently most judges began to imagine that they must have said it themselves. Even Cordell Hull, Roosevelt's Secretary of State, is under the impression that he originated the tale when he was a small-time judge in Tennessee. In his memoirs Mr. Hull repeats the incident in full with himself as the hero of it, though he confesses that he does not remember the details very well.

THUS Begbie, a citizen of Victoria, has marched across a continent though few North Americans have ever heard of him. This is gratifying since Canada has provided few continental myths. The only other one I can think of at the moment is the story of the boy in the iron pot.

It is repeated from time to time in some newspaper paragraph from any part of America. A small boy has thrust his head into one of those iron receptacles which used to be part of the furniture of every bedroom. He cannot extricate himself, wanders blindly about in his iron prison until it is removed by a plumber with a hacksaw.

THE facts, which I have laboriously researched, are simple enough. A boy named Winkle of Niagara Falls discovered in an attic a pot of antique design, festooned with pink roses, a pot of very superior quality, which he wore on his head as a helmet and could not remove. It was once the property of General Brock, who died heroically at Queenston Heights and, as a family heirloom, had been presented to him by his aunt in England.

Now it is the property of the American myth makers. Nameless boys spring up from New York to San Francisco all wearing their curious headdress, all staggering, blind, to a plumber's shop.

THUS good Canadian myths are instantly appropriated by the Americans for myths cannot be copyrighted. Lately I observe that the true story of Robert Dunsmuir going to sleep in the woods near Wellington, Vancouver Island, and waking up to find himself on a seam of coal and thus becoming the richest man in Canada, is now being told in American papers and soon will be told of every coal baron south of the border. All will awake shortly on a seam of coal. We cannot expect to retain the authentic Dunsmuir story for ourselves much longer.

SUCH tales are too big, significant and true for the possession of any single nation. They belong to humanity and to the ages. And, distorted beyond recognition, they are more durable than the truth.

Just as William Herndon, Lincoln's early law partner, invented and launched upon the world absurd anecdotes of the President which will endure long after the truth has been forgotten so, we may be sure, judges of the future, throughout the world, will be fining insolent prisoners and adding a sentence of six months in jail, and boys in iron pots will stalk forever through the history of remote nations as yet unborn. Canada will get no credit for these legends.

From each of the three myths mentioned above emerges a profound and universal truth which the makers of the myth never suspected.

IN BEGBIE'S fit of anger among the gold miners of Cariboo we perceive the majesty of the law and the basic fact of all society—that no individual can long challenge the power of society as a whole.

General Brock's iron receptacle, imprisoning a boy's head, is immediately understood by the public because it represents, in peculiarly vivid form, the perpetual imprisonment of humanity in a larger pot which we call this life on earth; every man knows that his head is always in a pot, and every thoughtful man knows that our whole civilization is today more firmly imprisoned than ever in a receptacle contrived by the artisans of the Kremlin. It is, indeed, the age of the iron pot, which may not be removed without the use of atomic explosives.

THE STORY of Dunsmuir asleep on his board of black treasure is also understood for the truth which it unconsciously tells us—the vagaries, uncertainties and absurdities of human existence and nature's careless way of scattering its largess among men.

As Our Readers See It

THE COMMON FORCE

Atomic energy which comes from God's creative source, can never be held secret—it is a common force! Atomic power is free to all and cannot be controlled. It should be used constructively, 'tis not for some to hold!

Let us move the wall of separation—the selfish wall of isolation, that separates our brother man! With no barriers of race or creed, from every limitation freed, co-operating when we can. Since co-operation is the key to brotherhood and unity!

When life becomes more precious than the vicious lust to kill, and men no longer beasts of prey, but understand God's will.

GENUINA.

DETERMINING AGE

In the illustrated folder, published and distributed by the B.C. Government Travel Bureau, describing Petroglyph Park at Nanaimo, it is stated that "The Hepburn Stone", the stone carving discovered in 1923 and now preserved at the Bastion, has been estimated to have been as long as 15,000 years ago.

However, in the article by Watson Davis in the magazine section of Saturday's Times, a new method of dating archaeological remains was devised in 1950. Under this method of measuring the proportion of radioactive carbon remaining in an organic object, the anthropologists have found the Folsom Man to be only about 4,300 years old instead of the 10,000 to 20,000 years previously attributed.

Mr. Davis writes, "Woven rope sandals from a lava-covered Oregon cave were found by the radiocarbon atomic calendar to be the oldest articles associated with man in the Americas—9,000 years old."

While the radiocarbon test probably cannot be used to determine the date of carving of the "Hepburn Stone," possibly organic remains might be found at the same level, a depth of 22 feet, and thus it could be learned whether or not the carving was made at a date prior to the making of the rope sandals found in Oregon.

GLOOMY PREDICTION

Radio news commentator Drew Pearson might use the following in his broadcasts: I predict—Joe Stalin and his boys to win the cold and hot wars without fail.

From each of the three myths mentioned above emerges a profound and universal truth which the makers of the myth never suspected.

IN BEGBIE'S fit of anger among the gold miners of Cariboo we perceive the majesty of the law and the basic fact of all society—that no individual can long challenge the power of society as a whole.

General Brock's iron receptacle, imprisoning a boy's head, is immediately understood by the public because it represents, in peculiarly vivid form, the perpetual imprisonment of humanity in a larger pot which we call this life on earth; every man knows that his head is always in a pot, and every thoughtful man knows that our whole civilization is today more firmly imprisoned than ever in a receptacle contrived by the artisans of the Kremlin. It is, indeed, the age of the iron pot, which may not be removed without the use of atomic explosives.

THE STORY of Dunsmuir asleep on his board of black treasure is also understood for the truth which it unconsciously tells us—the vagaries, uncertainties and absurdities of human existence and nature's careless way of scattering its largess among men.

Swallowing The Toss

The Times of London

MANY are the accidents and vicissitudes of sport, but the captain of a French football side who recently swallowed the five franc piece which the referee tossed for choice of ends can fairly plead to be the victim of an extraordinary occurrence.

The open mouth, and the unfortunate captain's must have been very wide open indeed, is often taken as a sign of a feeble intelligence and a wandering mind, but there are times—and the pantomime and circus season is emphatically one of them—when it denotes no more than a passionate concentration on the matter in hand, a state of complete and happy absorption.

A man who keeps his eyes skinned and his ears pricked is generally regarded as an uncommonly sharp and knowledgeable sort of person, and his is the mouth that keeps itself tightly shut, but there is much to be said for the kind of character that goes with the open mouth and the wide and starry gaze.

Tweedsmuir Park And Hydro Plans

PARKS men, with an eye on proposed hydro development for an aluminum industry centred at Kitimat, see two possibilities for Tweedsmuir Park, the natural reserve containing the lakes and rivers that would be utilized to provide power.

Through co-operation, and at some public expense, they envisage a vastly improved recreational region, accessible to the public without the high personal costs entailed under present conditions. Without co-operation, they fear the region could be spoiled by a wasteland of snags rising from the water at the point where visitors would enter or leave the scenic area.

The accent is definitely on the more favorable picture. At present 100 to 200 people go into Tweedsmuir Park annually. It's an expensive journey. With adequate development, of joint value to the aluminum interests and the public, roads would make access relatively easy.

SHORELINE PROBLEM

Scenic losses would be confined largely to lake shorelines where water was raised.

In the sections over which the water would flow is a substantial amount of forest growth, some of it merchantable timber. Should Government parks policy permit selective logging, returns from such commercial operations would help defray the costs of the lakeshore clearing.

The marginal fringe is the main cause of concern. If provision were made to cut down standing timber the scenery would be virtually unimpaired. Rising water levels would eliminate what is known as the Grand Canyon of the Nekahko and would reduce the falls between Tetachuck Lake and Echu Lake to a negligible height. But these are considered expendable.

Whether or not timber concerns would be prepared to log specified sections in the way the parks department wanted it to be logged is a question which only time and a policy decision by the Government can answer.

Some shake-up would occur in wildlife. That, experts believe, can be overcome through scientific conservation.

On the constructive side of the issue is the probability of greater park use. Some of Tweedsmuir would be reserved as a wilderness park—a place where a person could get far, far away from it all. Other sections would be brought within reach of the less rugged or less wealthy individual.

ROADS

Creation of the latter condition would depend on roads. It's possible to drive, with the help of a ferry, to Ootsa Lake from which the boat trips start, now, but the route must be improved.

From a layman's point of view, the prospect seems to represent the difference between holding in its virgin state a beautiful section of country which one in every 5,000 British Columbians sees in part each year, or of opening it up, so that at least the people of centres of population close to Tweedsmuir could go in and enjoy themselves.

The virtue of that argument is not lost on officials of the department concerned. They know that the most beautiful park in the world is valueless if no one sees it. And they know, too, that to preserve Tweedsmuir as one of the most beautiful parks of its kind in the world, close co-operation is required between them and hydro-development interests.

Ups And Downs

By BRIAN A. TOBIN

"EVERY now and then," said the Elevator Man, "somebody crops up with the information that some old law passed in the Middle Ages is still effective, so that everyone who carries a walking stick on Sunday, or some such thing, is really a law breaker. They're good for a laugh anyway. But looking a little closer, you begin to wonder if mere passage of time is enough to make a law a joke. And will our descendants a few generations from now get the same kick out of the funny restrictions we enjoy? Maybe they'll have so many more laws than even we have that they won't have time to think of ours. Or maybe—what odds do you offer—by that time they'll have got back to just a few simple, basic rules and they'll have only pity for us. After all, we started out with only ten laws. Could be, we might get back to them some day. Going up!"

"I see," said the Elevator Man, "where city officials in Cleveland have been thinking along these lines. They've finally got around to issuing a new book of instructions for their firemen—the first since 1914. Naturally there was a lot of dead wood to clean out, and the boys are going to be relieved of at least one chore from now on. They've left out a section on care and caution in handling horses, and after this the firemen don't have to make a daily check of the horses' teeth. Must be some time since any of 'em looked into a set of equine grinders, but at any rate they can ignore them legally now. Going down!"

"A lot of rulings," said the Elevator Man, "are disobeyed because they're misinterpreted. Remember the yarn about the Irishman? His boss sent him a letter, laying him off, but a week later found him back in the shop. ' Didn't you get my letter?' he asked. ' That Ol did,' says Pat. ' Didn't you read it?' asked the boss. ' Sure an' Ol did, inside and out. On the inside it said Ol was fired, and on the outside it said "Return to the Blank Company in five days." '

Sound Economy, Too

A PART FROM THE HUMANITARIAN factor involved, the proposal to give prison guards special university courses this year to improve their competency in the rehabilitation of prisoners has the appearance of good business. The policy has been recommended by the committee headed by Col. Eric Pepler, deputy attorney-general, with a view toward directing inmates back into useful lives.

Nevertheless, caricatured and stood on its head, the Monroe Doctrine for

It is a move to apply scientific methods to the correction of the faults which were the causes of the trouble into which prisoners fell.

What can be done to prevent inmates from turning back to crime when they are released not only emphasizes the corrective element of prison work. It can mean dollars and cents in the pockets of the taxpayers. Crime costs the innocent citizen too much for us to ignore any promising means of reducing its ranks.

Call It A Day

THIS IS THE TIME OF THE RELUCTANT morning and the eager evening. Only three weeks past the shortest day, the sun still climbs slowly over the horizon as though loath to take on another few hours of looking down on the global ant's nest below him. Not yet does he leap into view with the shining morning face of youth. That will come later, as the earth tips southward to meet him. Just now he goes to work with an obvious struggle—a tired old man with a bead-on-his-nose.

Although he gives out only partial power, and rests frequently behind the clouds, toward evening he tires rapidly. At a time when in summer he would look forward to a good four hours of shining, he calls it a day and slips morosely into the western cloudbank. A faint remorse over such conduct gives him pause. Maybe he has been niggardly. Red-faced, he turns for one backward look, and throws his last remaining rays across the darkening sky, touching to orange the fringes of the clouds.

The effort saps his final strength.

The orange turns to red, to rose, to purple. The great head droops; with a sigh he pulls the covers over him for a good night's rest. Perhaps he'll feel a little stronger in the morning, and try to get up a minute or two earlier, but right now sleep's the thing.

THE HOME GARDEN

Variation In Prices Of Plants Explained

By JACK G. BEASTALL

"Why," asks a reader, "do nurseries state a certain range of prices in their catalogues, but always seem to ask a higher price when you visit them to buy a plant?"

This is a question which troubles many home gardeners and causes some

to have a poor opinion of nurserymen in general.

It cannot be lightly answered because it involves many angles.

Obviously, a catalogue without prices would just a list of plants, and of little guidance to the gardener in making a selection.

Stated prices are essential,

but it is impossible to list an individual price for every plant which is growing in the nursery.

Conifers and evergreens seem to be the bone of contention.

The price of the former is usually figured at so much per foot of growth; the latter by the same means, or by the spread of the bush. Because of the wide variation in growth found in a planting of 500, the catalogue prices give only the approximate range into which the majority will fit. Some, of course, will be larger, while others will be too small for sale.

When a gardener orders a $3 plant by mail, he will receive one of a $3 size. But when the gardener visits the nursery, things are a little different; the procedure is practically reversed.

PICKS BEST PLANT

Instead of asking for a $3 plant, he looks over the entire planting and usually selects the best specimen he can find. At the basic rate per foot, this plant is worth more than the total he intended to spend, yet he feels that the catalogue price should be upheld.

This is the most common reason for the difference in price, and it was explained to me many years ago when I tried to put a nurseryman "on the spot."

When the nurseryman knows how much the gardener wishes to spend, he will show the plants at that price, and advise whether the purchase is wise or not.

Rayon Research Shown At Rotary

Rotary Club members Thursday saw a film depicting the history of rayon research and development, prepared by the American Viscose Corporation.

Beginning with the original idea of producing synthetic fibres, first recorded in 1664 and concluding with the varied uses of the fabric, each stage in its development was portrayed in narrative form.

On the suggestion of George Duck, president, a picture of the late T. J. Goodlake, presented to the club by Ken McAllister, will be forwarded to Mrs. Goodlake.

Few In Washington Fear War Will Hit This Year

Small Groups Of Extremists Outbalanced By Moderates; Eisenhower's Views Weighed

By BELMAN MORIN

WASHINGTON (AP)—A few people have fled to the hills from Washington, in fear of being bombed (or something), but the United States capital as a whole is reasonably confident about the chance of peace this year.

The shades of opinion run, as always, from dark blue to bright rose.

In between is the widest band of all, compounded of a good straight look at the dangers and a belief that they are not acute to the point of a three-bell alarm.

Some top officials in sensitive listening posts in government say they see "no evidence yet that they (the Russians) are set for a major move."

Similarly, before he left for his new post, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower expressed some reason for hopefulness. He told a group of leaders that if he found anything in Europe to change his attitude he would immediately say so.

That approach is reflected in the planning for mobilization and the method of rearming.

Neither is being pushed in a spirit of panic. There is no disposition, this time, to call millions of men to arms—and then have them standing around with broomsticks for want of real weapons.

In the National Production Authority, which determines the requirements of materials for national defence, the wheels are moving. You hear both stories that the program is going too fast and will upset the civilian economy "which is just what the Russians want"—and that it's going too slow to meet the deadlines.

Ottawa Plans To Take Action On Hoarding

OTTAWA (CP)—The government is prepared to move in on hoarders of strategic materials, but it won't operate through any specific anti-hoarding legislation.

Officials said Thursday the means of hitting out at hoarders will be through the Essential Materials Act.

This legislation, passed at the last session of Parliament, gives Trade Minister Howe extensive power to control prices and allocations of any materials needed in Canada's expending defence effort.

Officials added it will be used against speculators if they are found to be gathering huge stocks of scarce materials to gain big profits.

If those items are needed for defence, officials said, Mr. Howe will be able to force the speculator to turn over his stocks to the government or transfer them to some company at whatever prices Mr. Howe may consider reasonable.

So far such steps have not been necessary. Canadian industry has been on the watch for speculative excessive stockpiling by individual firms.

"The average Canadian manufacturer takes a dim view of hoarding," officials said.

NEWCASTLE M.L.A. AGAINST COALITION

Dangerous To Allow It Too Long
Andrew Whisker Tells Young Liberals

The provincial coalition of Liberals and Conservatives was under attack again Thursday night.

This time, the assailant flying with the flag for party independence was the Liberal Coalitionist from Cowichan-Newcastle, Andrew Mowatt Whisker.

"It is unfortunate the Liberal Party came to such a low ebb," Mr. Whisker said.

"It would have been better for the Liberals to have sat as opposition for awhile."

With reference to the last general election, in which he made his political debut, the speaker observed:

M.L.A. Calls For Secondary Road Building Plan

Criticism of the government's road-building program came Thursday night from Andrew Whisker, Coalition M.L.A. for the district of Cowichan-Newcastle, in address to the Victoria City Young Liberals Association.

"I demand continually," he said, "that the government give consideration to secondary roads."

Mr. Whisker said the number of people who lived on main roads was comparatively small compared with the number living on secondary roads. Country dwellers were just as much concerned about the condition of their road as a city dweller, therefore, he expected to vote against a government that didn't keep his road in good condition.

Mr. Whisker spoke seriously on this point.

"In our district," he said, "we have 50 miles of very bad secondary roads. Those bad roads can defeat the government.

"People won't ride forever on a promise."

Young Liberals Set 35-Year Age Limit

Victoria Young Liberals Thursday night voted to amend their constitution, to set the age limit for membership from 16 to 35, instead of from 16 to 32 as it was previously.

The amendment was introduced to conform with provincial and federal Young Liberal constitutions.

More Margarine, Less Butter Made

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's creamy butter production dropped by almost 17,000,000 pounds last year, while the output of margarine increased more than 20,000,000 pounds according to the Bureau of Statistics.

Production of the butter substitute amounted to 94,032,000 pounds, compared with 73,958,000 pounds in 1949.

Mrs. Kenneth Cuff, 192 Henry Street, Sydney, Nova Scotia, is a woman who has had more than her share of trouble and sickness, including four operations. In recent years Mrs. Cuff, who is 66 years old, suffered a great deal from rheumatic pains and upset stomach. She tried many remedies in an effort to get relief and nothing seemed to do her much good. Then she heard about SARNAK and she started taking it. Here is Mrs. Cuff's own statement in regard to her experience with SARNAK.

"I have been ailing for years, have had four operations that caused me a great deal of trouble and finally began to suffer rheumatic pains and upset stomach. I started taking SARNAK after hearing what my friends had to say about it and it has certainly helped me a great deal. I had relief from my rheumatic pain the first week and the stomach upsets and the heartburn were relieved almost immediately. I don't know how I would get along without SARNAK."

Yes, you should try SARNAK ... as have thousands of others in Canada who suffer from rheumatic, neuritic and arthritic pain, sciatica, bacheache, lumbago or neuralgia, some minor forms of kidney and liver upsets, bilious dizzy spells, nutritional anemia, lack of vitality and nervousness caused by these symptoms. ## 'DEAD' MAN WANTED FOOD

LONDON (AP) — When Harman Bickers, 61, applied for new ration books, he found out he was listed as "deceased." Coroner W. R. Heddy ruled Bickers alive and explained the mixup occurred when the body of a man found in the Thames was identified erroneously as Bickers. Bickers got his new ration books, but his wife, with whom he had not been living, lost her widow's pension of 26 shillings ($3.44) weekly.

3 Months For Shopbreaking

Wilfred Parsons, Delmar Avenue, and Douglas H. Hilton, 1755 Helen Road, were sentenced to three months in jail in Saanich police court Thursday for shopbreaking and theft.

They earlier pleaded guilty to a charge of breaking and entering the Colquitz store of Elmer King and committing theft on the night of Dec. 30.

Thomas L. Margetish, 1306 Hastings Street, and James H. Lockhart, 1290 Hastings Street, transferred to the senior court from juvenile court on the same charge, were remanded to Jan. 18.

James Proudfoot and David Sloan were elected Thursday night to be delegates from the Victoria County Young Liberal Association to the Liberal's central executive.

Central Saanich Voters Pack Election Meetings

Keen interest in Central Saanich elections Saturday was shown by residents Thursday night, who packed both Brentwood W.I. and South Saanich Institute Halls, Keating-to-Fear addresses from all candidates.

Sydney Pickles, candidate for reeve, said the financial position of the new municipality was as sound as a bell if administered properly. He presented two plans to the taxpayers, one which, in brief, would provide fire protection through contract with Saanich, and the other based on the new municipality's forming two volunteer fire brigades of its own.

"Borrowing on a sound basis necessitates borrowing an amount which can be taken care of by income over a period of years," he said. "Done wisely, however, it will save money in the purchase of capital equipment, as long as the income can pay the interest and toward the principal."

In his closing address of the campaign, Percy Thorp, second candidate for reeve, reviewed his experience as mayor of Grand Prairie, Alta., and of his work as chairman of the North Saanich School Board.

He was also quite definite in stating that the reeve and councillors were entitled to remuneration.

Needs of the new municipality were a reeve who could advise and guide the council, he said.

"We also are starting with a clean sheet," he said. "My object is to keep it clean. I'm against borrowing for any purpose. I think we should get along as little as possible for the first year, and do all possible heavy work by contract."

Council candidates' opinions, briefly, were as follows:

ALBERT DONEY

A well-equipped fire hall in the centre of the municipality will serve as well as two or three departments. If possible there should be one or two paid men to keep the equipment in order.

WILLARD W. MICHELL

At least eight or 10 candidates should have been seeking office on the new council. Those elected should receive at least out-of-pocket expenses and even a little more because they will lose a lot of time in forming the new municipality.

LORNE THOMSON

With a large area in which to live the residents should allow themselves "elbow room"

Find Old Country Changed, Colwood Pair Glad To Be Back

The "old country" isn't what it used to be, in the opinion of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Harris, former Victorians who have returned to the city after four years in their native England.

They disembarked Thursday afternoon from the Donaldson Line's S.S. Laurentia.

Mr. and Mrs. Harris had a poultry farm at Colwood for 16 years, but decided to return to the land of their birth in 1946.

They tried dairy farming in Leicestershire but now are glad to be back to Vancouver Island—"still the best place in the world to live."

and not permit small crowded settlements to grow up.

RAY LAMONT

Younger men should take more interest in municipal matters since "we are the ones who pay tomorrow for what you ask today." He will be governed by the capacity of the taxpayer to pay.

HAROLD ANDREW

The people should not expect too much from their councillors, who are not engineers or financiers, but would have to pick the best they could.

SPORT WEEK

By JOHN LARDNER

Reprinted from Newsweek by special arrangement with the Victoria Daily Times.

The first thing to be established is that this department had nothing to do with the scuttling of A. B. Chandler, who was recently demoted from future commissioner to present commissioner of baseball. Twenty witnesses will swear that I was in St. Louis, setting fires for insurance, at the hour when Del Webb and P. K.

Wrigley stalked into a St. Petersburg, Fla., banquet hall and tipped Happy the black spot so abruptly that he like to choked on his pompano.

It's true that less than 12 hours later, I was asked about taking the job.

"Will you replace Commissioner Chandler?" said a reporter, accosting me as I started to board a side-door Pullman car on the St. L.S.F. Railroad, southbound.

"I'll replace anything that's missing," I told him, putting up my hands, "but can't we make some kind of deal?"

It developed, after a few more questions and answers, that there had been a misunderstanding: on account of the wide-brimmed hat I wore, the lad had confused me with a senator. I explained that the hat was the gift of Amon G. Carter, well-known publisher of Fort Worth, Texas. The next morning's paper predicted freely that Carter was the coming commissioner. That shows you how these things start.

Entries Being Accepted

Within two weeks, the list of potential commissioners had dwindled down to Senator Kefauver, Senator Johnson, Senator Lucas, James A. Farley, Ford Frick, Will Harridge, Don Meade, Mrs. Mickey Rooney, Thomas E. Dewey, the poet Daniel Fodick Parker, and a man named Onthank, who had not been identified as we went to press. (It is thought that Onthank's real name is Whosk, who has also not been identified.) A splinter movement to replace A. B. Chandler with A. B. Chandler, headed by A. B. Chandler, was seen in the air near Cincinnati, if that's what it was. It may have been a flying saucer.

Now, it is no secret that in the early days after Hap was flagged down with his knife and fork in his hands, in St. Petersburg, where only the sun never sets, a substantial minority of the baseball owners favored Senator Borah or Senator Root for the post. True, both men are deceased, but that is an asset rather than a liability, from the point of view of the magnates. It is well not to lose sight of this possibility, though it has since lost ground.

Desired Qualifications

Meanwhile, the key of the problem is, why was A. B. Chandler elected in the first place, back there in 1945? The answer to that question may give us a clue to the identity of his successor, and why it is likely to be either Ezio Pinza, the Mediterranean hummingbird, or Jack Doyle, the Irish linnet, who is famous for the sweetness of his pipes and for the fact that he is the only heavyweight boxer in history who ever knocked out a man of exactly his own size and weight, namely, himself.

Some years ago, after I had been meditating publicly on the causes, the raison d'être (or dolce far niente), of A. B. Chandler. I got one of several letters from the Chandler office, which had been kind enough to rank me as public enemy No. 3 in that year's seedlings. The letter enclosed clippings from a number of newspapers.

"Read these," it said in effect, "and see why people love our chief."

Songbirds, Beware

I read them, and learned that Happy had sung "Mother Macree" at a banquet in one place, and "Sweet Rosie O'Grady" at another. That explained everything, for me. Baseball had been looking for the best singer it could find; its choice fell, like a single drop of pure dew, on Hap. That is why I advise Pinza and Doyle to stay near their telephones. They are the sweetest singers the game can muster, now that A. B. Chandler has changed his old tunes for such numbers as the melancholy, mournful "Unemployed Commissioner Blues."

But there is a word of warning that should be passed along to all songbirds and senators and James A. Farley. What of the future? Would you ever be able to sit down at a banquet table without the sinister feeling that somewhere along the line—with the shrimps, with the chicken, with the spumoni—Del Webb and P. K. Wrigley might stalk up to hand you the black spot? Proceed with caution.

UNITED SET FOR CRUCIAL PLAYOFF AGAINST SHORES

Tommy Restell and his Coast Soccer League eleven leave on the midnight boat tonight to play the game which will either catapult United into the C.S.L. playoffs or bring the senior soccer season to a temporary conclusion.

United will meet North Shore Reds tomorrow in a single game semifinal. If the Restell men win they will engage the winners of the Vancouver City-St. Andrew's contest in a home-and-home final series.

Although United are unable to point to a single win against North Shore in regular league play, manager Restell is confident that recent games have sharpened the capital city club and that Victoria has better than an even chance of humbling the league champions.

Tide Would Go Big In Japanese League

If conditions in the Orient improve, and General Douglas MacArthur will give permission, another provincial all-star rugby team may tour Japan.

Efforts to arrange a tour by a B.C. team are being made by Kazuhisa Miyahara, a Japanese business man who is a rabid rugby fan.

Miyahara told the B.C.R.U. in Vancouver that Japan now has 1,000 teams playing English rugby, and that games are drawing from 25,000 to 30,000 spectators.

The Japanese, touring Canada and the United States on business for his firm, flew here from Seattle for the Boxing Day game between Crimson Tide and North Shore. His disappointment, when the game was postponed owing to the non-appearance of Norwesters, was partially offset by his interest in the city itself.

1932 TOUR

The last time a B.C. rep rugby squad toured Japan was in 1932, when several city players were members of an all-star squad which crossed the Pacific to give a fillip to the Japanese Rugby Union.

Although denied a game on Boxing Day, Miyahara did see two McKechnie Cup teams in action in Vancouver and expressed the belief that Japanese teams could give a good account of themselves against a touring British Columbia squad.

Game time at Macdonald Park tomorrow afternoon is 2:30.

WIN-HUNGRY EAGLES TO TEST COUGARS

All indications are that tonight's P.C.H.L. tilt between Portland Eagles and Victoria Cougars at the Memorial Arena will be something more than just an ordinary hockey game.

The Eagles are hungry for victory having gone eight straight games without a triumph while the Cougars will be out to protect their two-game shutout sequence started here a week ago against Tacoma Rockets.

Not only that but the Cougars will be protecting an unbeaten four-game home record and will be shooting for a possible second-place tie with Tacoma Rockets. Tacoma plays in Vancouver to night.

Currently two points behind the Rockets the Cougars must win if they hope to draw even with Muzz Patrick's club.

Then there's Portland. Until recently the Eagles were pure poison for the Cougars and before their last appearance here had gone 17 games without a defeat against the locals. Now they are in a slump and with some players definitely playing

Inlet Ladder Derby Ratified By Anglers

Automobile Main Prize; Ball Elected President

By ROY THORSEN

A nine-week ladder derby with a total of $2,500 in prizes, including an automobile for the fishoff, is this year's featured competition of the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association.

At the annual meeting held Thursday night in the Club Siroco 160 members of the 18-year-old sportsmen's club unanimously endorsed a proposal to replace the several derby plan of past years with the elongated salmon.

The meeting attracted the biggest turnout of members in the postwar period and they unanimously elected Stan Ball as their president. Stan has been a hard, diligent worker for the club during the last few years.

Dave Grey, a former past president, was the choice as vice-president, and Wil E. Wilson was named second vice-president. George Douglas of the B.C. public works engineering department, will take over the job of secretary-treasurer.

ON DIRECTORATE

Dave Donaldson, detective of the city police force; Tom Bannister, police sergeant, and Harold Gent were elected to the board of directors.

Harry Woolston, Mike Andrews and Cliff Heglin were chosen as trustees.

Vice-president Dave Grey gave the gathering a complete report on the way the ladder derby would be run. While there were questions from the floor on certain aspects, Grey explained each in simple, clear words, which left no one in doubt.

It starts May 24 and closes at midnight July 31, and will be fully explained in the 1951 Year Book.

The 35 heaviest fish weighed in by entrants each week will be switched to the master ladder. Once on the main ladder they cannot be knocked off. The fishoff for a car will see 315 anglers competing.

Grey, who worked this out with Wilson and Ball, explained that three prizes worth $100 will be fished for each week.

George "Joker" Patton, long-time friend of the association, was elected honorary-president. Capt. A. C. Crucible, retiring president, will remain on the directorate in the capacity of past-president.

STILL IN THE MONEY

Financial report showed the club operated in 1950 to show a loss over receipts of $6 and enjoyed a membership of 941 members. Club finished the year with $3,168 in bonds, cash and assets.

Fred Booth, 41 Millstream Road, was the No. 1 angler of

IT'S MY VIEW

By BILL WALKER. Sports Editor.

Thursday was one of those days when nothing seemed to go right. First of all the clock was half an hour fast, and that caused us to be in town at the outlandish hour of 6:30. Dusty Miller's Ten O' Two, (it's okay, advertisers, he sponsors a bowling team) was open so we dropped in for coffee. Dusty is a rabid Cougars fan though, he's willing to take a gamble given the right odds.

Of course the talk got around to the Portland Eagles and their recent slump and also to Jerry Cotnoir, the Cougars goalie. Dusty couldn't figure it out. He thought the Eagles were just about the classiest team in the league when they played here earlier this season. But then, who didn't? And Cotnoir; well, he's just the shutting-out goalie in the league right now, and with Portland, who haven't scored a goal in two games, in town tonight, what odds would you give that Cotnoir gets another goose egg.

These Eagles have had their tail feathers clipped in all of their last 14 games. They managed one victory and two ties to save a little plumage. But now things are really serious. They've lost eight straight and they are in the cellar.

Tony And Morpheus

Figuring that coach Tony Hemmerling would be bleeding pretty hard we camped on Fred Hutchinson's doorstep in the afternoon awaiting Tony's arrival. But no Tony.

Undaunted, down to the hotel we went. And we found Tony. But we found him in bed. Not actually under the covers mind, but in bed with the blanket tucked up under his chin. No, he wasn't sick; just trying to get some sleep. Morpheus deserted Tony about a month ago and hasn't been seen since.

Not only that, but Tony's ulcers were giving him trouble. A new one for every defeat is the way Lex Cook, trouble shooter from the Cleveland Barons, summed it up; and every goal just another jab. This is going to be good, we thought. Tony won't talk; and we were partly right.

"What's the matter with my team?" he said. "I only wish I knew. Morphew! Morphew! Where art thou?"

Lex was busy writing a letter to his wife when we arrived, but soon he joined in the confab. Tony, his eyes closed, pretended he was sleeping. But actually he was counting pucks, pucks going into the Portland cage. Then there would be a groan and Tony would roll over and start counting again. This kept up for the better part of an hour, Tony every so often joining in with: When will it end? Oh Morphew!

Eggs In The Basket

Meanwhile, Lex attempted to supply the answer. That's what he's here for and somehow we think he's got his finger on it, though all he would say was: We've got a couple of moves on the fire. We may know today, we may know tomorrow. But sometimes will be done.

Then he started asking about the Cougars. You see, Lex had Eddie Mazur and Eddie Dorohoy under his wing for a time, not to mention a few other Cougars of the past. And he had a couple of good stories to tell on "Pistol" that bear repeating, though it will probably be as much as our life is worth to go into the Cougars dressing-room tonight.

At any rate here goes.

It seems that when Eddie went to the Montreal Canadiens he was a pretty cocky kid—he's hardly the blushing type of athlete right now, but he's proving his point well by leading the Cougars in scoring and that's as much as anyone can ask.

At Montreal, Dick Irvin had a system where each player was rated as to his point production for the season. If all went well, and the players lived up to their given allotment, the Canadiens would make the playoffs.

Mr. Irvin Retires

Somewhere along the line, Irvin made a check and found that certain individuals, Dorohoy being one, weren't exactly up to scratch. After going down the list Irvin finally confronted Dorohoy with: "And you, Dorohoy, you haven't even got one point yet."

Unashamed, Dorohoy looked his mentor squarely in the eye and said: "Mr. Irvin, I've only been on the ice for two minutes, but I gave it all I had during that stretch."

The other story? We're saving that one just in case Eddie gets out of line some night.

But before we take in tonight's battle of the "scoreless" and the "unscored upon"—both clubs have two-game records—it is worthy of note that Lex Cook thinks a playoff between the U.S.H.L. and the P.C.H.L. would be a "natural." But it would have to be played on the coast. It wouldn't draw in the east. And oh, yes, we're taking Tony and Lex on a Cook's tour of the city this afternoon. Maybe the car ride will rock Tony to sleep. Morphew, where art thou?

Minor Soccer Schedule Set

Only one game has been scheduled for Saturday by the Lower Island Junior and Juvenile Football Association. A third-division match will see Army, Navy and Air Force Vets clash with Esquimalt Athletic Club at Bullen Park tomorrow afternoon at 1.

Two junior contests are slated for Sunday. Esquimalt will meet Veterans of France at Heywood Avenue, and Duncan will tangle with Heaneys at Duncan. The Heywood Avenue game is set for Sunday afternoon at 2:15.

Sunday will also see Tillicum and Esquimalt in a division-one

McMorran's intermediate boys won their Saanich and Suburban League playoff title in straight games last night when they defeated Brentwood, 35 to 18. In the two-game total points series, McMorran's emerged on the long end of a 76 to 36 score.

In a preliminary exhibition, Victoria College girls defeated McMorran's girls, 17 to 12.

Richard Roars Again As Habs Whip Chihawks

If Joseph Henri Maurice Richard were a politician, he'd probably be Montreal's leading candidate for mayor today.

The chunky, black-haired young man is the "people's choice"—at least of those who follow professional hockey—for the keys of the city.

"Le Rocket Est La!" was the cry of 14,042 Montrealers last night as Richard fired two goals and got an assist to lead Montreal Canadiens to a 4 to 1 triumph over Chicago Black Hawks. The victory lifted the Habitants into sole possession of the National Hockey League's third place, two points ahead of Boston Bruins.

"Le Rocket's got it—he's in there!" might be a free translation of the tribute to Richard, rated one of the greatest N.H.L. right wings of all time. His performance last night laid a canard started a week or two ago by general manager Jack Adams of Detroit Red Wings. Jolly Jawn suggested that his own pride and joy at right wing, Gordie Howe, was the best hockey player around today.

Richard promptly went out and scored six goals in three straight games—and incidentally gave his team three consecutive victories. On Saturday night, the Habs get a chance to step two full games ahead of Boston when they meet the Bruins here.

Tony Martin Takes Hair Down; Out Of Romance Dept.

By ERSKINE JOHNSON

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Guys and Dolls: Tony Martin is willing the curling irons they used on him in "Casbah" to any profile king who can sight into a shell-pink ear without feeling sheepish about the whole thing.

He's not the lover-boy type in "Two Tickets to Broadway" and woe to any producer who toeses flowery dialogue at Tony again.

"I'm roughed up and my head's tilted this time," he grinned. "Absolutely no romantic stuff. Eddie Bracken makes a fool out of me all the way through the picture. This I like."

The Benny Fields role in Paramount's "The Blossom Seeley Story" for Tony?

"All I know," he told me, "is that Betty Hutton wants me for it real bad. I imagine Paramount's waiting to see some footage from this picture before it's decided. But I won't do it if they dub Benny's voice on the sound track. I did that once. No more."

Fifi D'Orsay, the fizz girl of Hollywood's golden era, confirms the rumor that she has been huddling with Bing Crosby about a film comeback.

"Et es stell een talking stage," Fifi enthused. "You know, Beeng, he love to make ze jokes weeth French girls."

Fifi's still getting the "I-thought-you-were-an-old-bag" lime from movie town citizens who ogle her shapely chassis and youthful face. She says that "everybody expect me to have three chins hanging down" and tells of her appearance at a swank Hollywood party:

"Geenger Rogers, she do a doubletake w'en she see me. And Janet Gaynor, she wave to me and say, 'Fifi, you are bettaire than twenty years ago!'

SMITH'S SORROWS

They're shouting it from the Fox Studio rooftops that Constance Smith, an Irish beauty, has what it takes to lure males away from the TV screens, and the newest Smith in Hollywood isn't so sure.

She's a kitchen maid in "The Mudlark."

"And," she told me, "I lack sex appeal as a cold woman in 'The Scarlet Pen.' I'm no good at the shake of the hips."

I did a double-take and asked if the studio had tossed her a grass skirt and assigned her a hoochy-cooey coacoo.

"No," she said, "I mean I never wanted glamorous parts. You know, shake of the hips."

MARRIAGES UP

Marriages in the United States in 1950 totaled about 1,675,000 or 5 per cent more than in 1949.

'Communist For F.B.I.'
New U.S. Propaganda Film

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Hollywood is answering Russian anti-U.S. propaganda films with a picture designed to tell the truth about Communism in America.

The new film bears the lengthy title "I Was a Communist for the F.B.I." It is based on Saturday Evening Post document of Matt Cvetic, who spent nine years in Communist circles in Pittsburgh as a Federal Bureau of Investigation agent.

"We aim to make an entertaining and truthful picture," said Crane Wilbur, who is writing the film. "It will be based entirely on the Post articles, plus information I have picked up over the years by attending Communist meetings open to the public and observing their methods.

We have only one limitation of censorship. That is that we can't use certain real characters who haven't permitted their names in the picture. Otherwise the story will appear exactly as it happened.

This is the story of a man who is to use a word that our sophisticated society has made sound corny—a patriot. He offered his services to the government as an undercover agent because he wanted to do something for his country. He was accepted by the F.B.I.

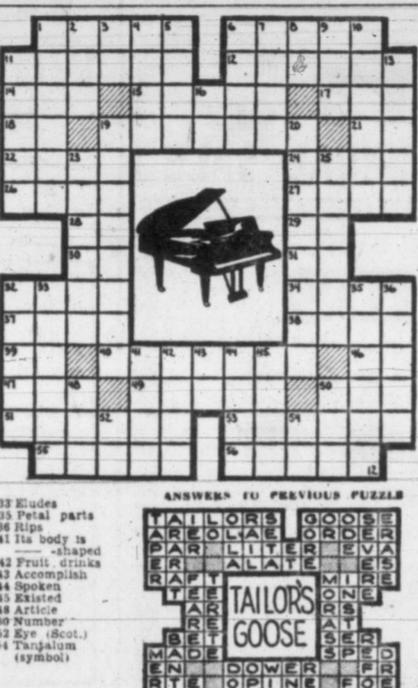

"He then allowed himself to be sought by the Communists. He read the Daily Worker, made some speeches and then was brought into the organization. His entire family turned against him, including his own son. His mother died thinking him a traitor to his country. Still he kept his secret and provided invaluable information for the government."

Wilbur, now a successful writer and director, was once a stage and screen star. He appeared in such hit plays as "Mourning Becomes Electra," "Dinner at Eight," and "A Farewell to Arms."

"High Seas," starring Glenn Ford and Claire Trevor; plus "Hell Town."

RIO—"Johnny Stool Pigeon," starring Howard Duff; plus "Marshal of Mesa City," Doors 6 p.m.

ROYAL—"King Solomon's Mines," starring Deborah Kerr and Stewart Granger, at 114, 318, 522, 726, 933.

ultimate perfection and sculptured with impeccable taste. His bow is a live thing, weaving brilliantly graceful patterns in the Mozart, seeking out the finest nuance of an adagio, flashing unbelieveable fire in the Brahms finale, the Paganini and the Hubay, or shaking free droplets of pure flute-like silver in "Maidens in the Garden" (Mompou-Szigeti).

To hear Szigeti is to realize that the violin has a thousand delicate and subtle voices and that he, more than possibly any other living violinist, is master of them all.

In Harry Kaufman, Szigeti had a superbly accompanist whose partnership in the Brahms and Mozart left nothing at all to be desired.

From the chordal intricacies of the unaccompanied Bach Sarabande the mood changed to one of lively charm and melodic purity in the Mozart G minor Concerto. Then came the profound contrasts of the Brahms D minor Sonata and, for the second half of the program, a rich variety of fare, including the marionette-like D major Rondo (Friedberg-Schubert) and such virtuosic items as the Paganini Caprice No. 24 and Hubay's Hungarian Rhapsody (Scene de la Csardas No. III).

It has been said of Szigeti that he more closely approximates the art of Joseph Joachim than any other violinist of the day. Certainly he has the effect of wizardry that was attributed to his predecessor.

Each phrase that falls from his violin is thought out to its

Six Sightless War Refugees To Find New Homes In Canada

HAMBURG, Germany (CP)—Six blind refugees, the hardships of prison camps, communism and their own dark homelessness behind them, leave here Jan. 15 for a new life in Canada.

The six, along with their families, will board an International Refugee Organization plane for Toronto. They are sponsored by the Canadian National Institute For the Blind and have been accepted as immigrants by the Canadian government.

Canada thus becomes the second country in the world to move to reclaim sightless victims from

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

By OSWALD JACOBY

After my team mates won the world's championship in Bermuda last November, all of the international bridge starts took a busman's holiday by competing in a tournament for pairs. One of the American pairs gave a good account of itself in the hand shown today.

The bidding was aggressive on both sides, probably too aggressive. Part of the reason was that three of the players had just finished the long grind of the team match and were therefore inclined to be a bit on the giddy side. It was the fourth player, however, who had all the work to do.

That player was Alfred Sheinwold, well-known New York expert, who proceeded to play the South hand as though he could see through the backs of the cards.

West, a famous Swedish player, opened a low club, and East won with the ace. A trump lead would have been better, but West couldn't know that.

East returned the deuce of diamonds, and West's ten forced out dummy's king. Dummy returned a diamond, and East was permitted to hold the trick with his nine. East, feeling strapped for a good lead, led his remaining diamond. South played low, and dummy ruffed with the low trump.

Sheinwold could now afford to lose only two tricks, and felt sure because of the penalty double that he was bound to lose two trump tricks. He also had the queen of diamonds to take care of and therefore couldn't hurry.

After some thought he ruffed a club and cashed three rounds of spades without taking the precaution of leading trumps. He next ruffed another club, thus reducing East to his four trumps.

At this point declarer led the queen of diamonds. West covered with the ace of diamonds, and the king of hearts was played from dummy. East had to overruff with the ace of hearts since otherwise declarer would have eight tricks and would make him nine by ruffing a club with the jack of hearts.

East then cashed the queen of hearts, capturing dummy's ten of hearts, but also dropping his partner's eight. At this point East had left the nine and six of hearts, while South had the jack and seven. When East led the six of hearts, Sheinwold confidently finessed the seven, thus making his contract.

Burgess Bedtime Story

By THORNTON W. BURGESS
Do the things that you do best,
And leave to circumstance the rest.
—Old Mother Nature.

That saying of Old Mother Nature's is almost a law to the little people of the green forest and the green meadows. They long ago learned that there are certain things each can do better than anything else. Peter Rabbit is a wonderful dodger. He can dodge better than any of those who try to catch him. So Peter is always ready to dodge. Uncle Billy Possum can play dead so perfectly that he can fool his enemies. So he doesn't worry too much when someone is after him. He is sure that if he plays dead he will be left alone. So it is with all of Mother Nature's children, each doing the thing he can do best.

CHASED UP TREE

Chatterer the red squirrel had been chased up a tree by Reddy Fox. Now Chatterer is more at home in a tree than he is on the ground. Of course, Reddy does not climb, so Chatterer who dearly loves the sound of his own voice and dearly loves to scold others, had had a wonderful time scolding Reddy. He hadn't stopped to think that some hungry enemy who could climb a tree might hear him. Then Reddy had told him that he had heard that Spite the Marten had come down from the great mountain and was somewhere in the green forest. Chatterer didn't really believe it but the very thought made him shiver. He shivered still more when he realized that he was in a tree from which he couldn't escape by going down to the ground. There was no other tree near enough for him to jump to. What if it should be true that Spite the Marten was in the green forest and had heard him? How he did wish that Reddy Fox would go away.

Presently Reddy did go away. He knew that Chatterer would never come down while he was about. So he went his way to hunt for someone else. The instant that Reddy was far enough away to be no longer dangerous Chatterer ran down the tree and raced over to another. He was careful to choose a tree near enough to other trees so that he could travel through the trees if there should be need.

Jumping from the branches of one tree to another. Then he started for home and as he traveled he kept looking back over his shoulder anxiously.

Chatterer had not much more

Presently Reddy did go away

he failed to reach it and fell, but caught himself on a branch below.

Behind him came Spite. He was coming fast, but didn't seem to be hurrying. He was running easily and he was jumping easily. The jumps that were long for Chatterer were easy for Spite. He had quite made up his mind for a Squirrel dinner, and it looked very much as if he were going to get it. Chatterer had had many frights in his life, but never had he been more frightened than he was now. Oh, how he wished he had kept that tongue of his still! It was his tongue that had led him into this dreadful trouble. That is one trouble with noisy tongues.

Gang Of Montreal Pests Rounded Up By Detectives In Make-Up, Women's Clothes

MONTREAL (CP) — Two sturdy homicide squad detectives sighed with relief Thursday and put away female attire and cosmetics they had been using for three weeks in a vain attempt to trap a gang of rapists in the city's west end.

Wishing to remain anonymous, the pair waved goodbye to their night-time roles of female spies when they learned four men had been arrested in connection with 13 cases of rape, assault and theft during the last 18 months. A homicide squad official said he was "perfectly satisfied" that the arrests meant the end of one of the city's most extensive manhunts.

Police said the criminals always worked in pairs, one at the wheel of a taxicab and the other hiding in the rear seat. The driver would follow a lone woman and offer her a ride in return for information on the location of a street. As soon as the victim entered the vehicle, the man hiding in the rear would threaten her with a gun or a knife and she was forced to submit to both

By ART STOTT

You read of Katharine Hepburn in "As You Like It," and after you've done a little arithmetic to see if the entertainment budget will stretch to include that show, you may meander off into mental wanderings through Shakespeare. If you're a scholar, that can be a long and pleasant journey. If you're an ordinary guy, like me, it can still be pleasant if not intellectual.

Shakespeare you met when you were a kid in school, most probably when you were too young to see anything in his works. You "took" him like you took the brandy parents poured into a dessert spoon to kill the flavor of rancid castor oil. Years after you savor'd Shakespeare and couldn't quite get rid of the taste of drudgery that an uncomprehending study of him in early grades had instilled—just as you tasted castor oil in later drinks of brandy.

MAYBE WHEN YOU were beginning to feel your muscles in Fourth Reader, and when nothing was as important as the soccer game coming up after school, you had a Friday afternoon dramatic period. If you did, you bumped into Shakespeare again—almost invariably in the "Mercy" speech from "The Merchant of Venice." Some body's parents thought their elocutionary-inclined child should recite it.

The quality of mercy might not be strained, but it was the only thing about the performance that wasn't. The hollow, strangled sounds that came from the cloakroom during the recitation might have been from boys who sneaked away from their desks to avoid the punishment their reactions would have drawn in open class. Or it might have been from the shades of old Will himself and a dozen or so great Shakespeares who have kept the words singing from the stage nearly three and one-half centuries.

THE ONLY MERCY in those presentations was the sound of dismissal bell. It broke the awkward silence after the forced polite applause of students afraid to show their feelings.

When you got to High School, Shakespeare gained a little more stature. The school play was good fun. It gave the actors some room for bolstering activity and the joyous shouting of some words—that weren't allowed around home. And if you could get yourself a wooden sword and lay about you lustily, there was some satisfaction there, too.

If you belonged to an all-boy class, there was a little squeamishness about the show, though. You might be picked for Portia.

THAT WAS HARD to live down. It was all right for a young woman to simulate a young man in the play, but when a boy simulated a young woman simulating a young man, he could look for pretty snide remarks on the playground. Some day psychiatrists will trace down peculiar behaviour patterns among certain adult males to the anti-social trends developed in adolescence as a result of being Portia.

For most men, appreciation of Shakespeare develops—if it develops at all—when they're near their majority, either in private reading or at university. The seeds may be sown much earlier, but sprouting takes a long time. Then the inclination is to concentrate on the majesty of lines, on the depth of concept.

PROBABLY IT affects other people in a different way, but it's always amazing to some of us, when we see a first class production, that Shakespeare is such good entertainment on the stage. We should know better, but each time we're impressed by the story. We may be familiar with what's going to happen next, but we're the kind who sit forward on our seats waiting for it to happen, as if the plot were unknown.

We forget that Shakespeare was selling plays to an audience, and a pretty tough audience at that. We think of him as an essence contained in leather-bound books, with artistic type, or in coarser grain in the small volumes a school child knows. Even if we believe Shakespeare wrote Shakespeare, we're inclined to forget the man and think only of the output of genius.

It's the grandeur of the lines that leaves the impressions. No matter how they were attacked in school, they still survive.

B.C. SEEKS DELAY ON RATES HEARING

Becomes Sixth Province To Ask Deferment Of Railways' Request

B.C. is joining five other provinces in asking for a deferment of the coming hearing by the Board of Transport Commissioners on the railways' application for a further increase in freight rates.

Announcement of this action was made today by Premier Byron Johnson through Attorney-General Gordon Wismer.

Other provinces are Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia.

All feel the findings of a Royal Commission on the question of a more equitable freight rate structure should be made known before consideration is given to another rise in rates.

Those findings are expected to be handed down shortly.

B.C. has long argued for removal of inequalities in the rate arrangement. When Mr. Wismer successfully fought for removal of the mountain differential, it was pointed out that any rate increase on an overall basis only served to emphasize the inequalities that exist across the country.

The same would apply now, says the Attorney-General, if a further increase is granted, because B.C. rates on the same basis as the prairie zone, but the rate structure in the prairies is substantially higher than in the eastern zone of Ontario and Quebec.

Charge continues that in violation of good faith and contrary to such direction Gillies fraudulently applied the money for another purpose.

IN COURT

VICTORIA

Donald Houghton Gazeley, young naval rating who pleaded guilty, was sentenced to three months in jail on each of three charges of theft, to run concurrently.

Eric A. Robb was remanded to Jan. 15 for sentence on a charge of stealing a car. He pleaded guilty.

Irwin W. Agnew, H.M.C.S. Naden, did not appear in response to a summons on a charge of dangerous driving. Court ordered a new summons be served.

LICENSE SUSPENSION accompanied a $35 fine imposed against William G. Petersen, 433 Kingston, on a charge of careless driving.

Case of Dr. George W. Fletcher, 410 Simcoe Street, was adjourned to Jan. 18. He is charged with being intoxicated while in control of a car Jan. 3.

A $35 fine was imposed against Chan Kay, Chinese, 552 Flisgard, when he pleaded guilty to a charge of careless driving.

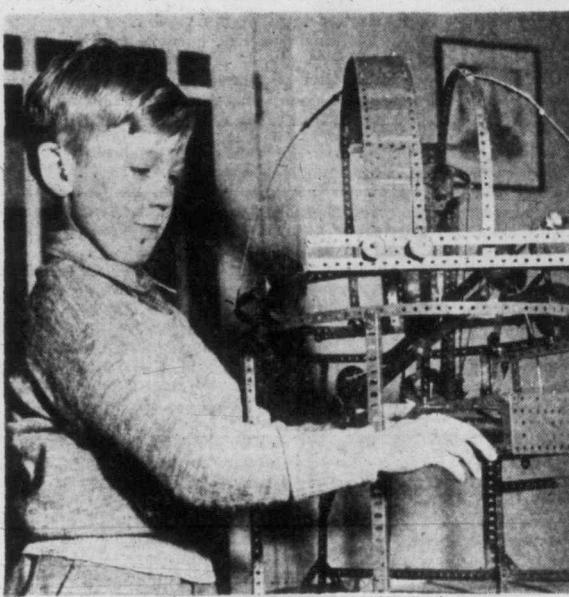

Vernon Taylor, charged with breaking and entering Wilson & Lenfestey's store and committing theft of over the value of $25, was remanded to Jan. 18.

WILL ASK OTTAWA For Priority On New Bridge Steel

A priority on steel will be asked of the federal government for construction of Point Ellice bridge, Mayor George said today. Greater Victoria Water Board have already made representations for steel priority for water pipe on grounds of need for the public and possible future civil defence requirements.

We forgot that Shakespeare was selling plays to an audience, and a pretty tough audience at that. Youth Builds Model Of Observatory Feature of this week's meeting of Royal Astronomical Society was meccano model of Mount Wilson Observatory in California, exhibited by nine-year-old Roger Steed, 1320 Minto. The young society member built model from drawings and photographs. Speakers at meeting were Dr. J. M. Black and Robert Peters.

Tofino Airport To Be Readied For More Use

Tofino Airport on the west coast of Vancouver Island will be taken over by the Department of Transport air services branch early in April.

The large field, located about 120 air miles northwest of Victoria adjacent to the famed sands of Long Beach, has been lying almost dormant since the end of the war.

The Transport Department built it for the R.C.A.F. and it has been maintained since hostilities ceased by a caretaker employed by the air force.

RADIO FACILITIES

The air services branch will handle operation and maintenance of the airport, which means there probably will be radio facilities set up and control tower men on duty.

Queen Charlotte Airlines operates into the field daily, and the flying school from Alberni uses it for student training. Itinerant aircraft often use the long, clement runways.

The gravel highway linking Tofino and Ucluelet passes by the airport, which is about halfway between the two west coast ports.

Motor Dealers Ask Lower Gas, License Fees, Highway Scheme

Claim Present B.C. Policy Deterrent To Major Industry

A three-point plan to benefit the motoring public of B.C. was recommended to the provincial cabinet today by a strong delegation from the motor dealers' industry of the province.

The points:

1. That motor vehicle license fees be reduced to a level comparable with other provinces.

2. That the gasoline tax be reduced "modestly."

3. That a new highway financing policy be adopted to insure continuation and extension of the road construction program.

The delegation, whose spokesman was Edwin T. Orr, Vancouver, secretary-treasurer of the B.C. and the Vancouver motor dealers' associations, included John H. Watson, president of the Victoria Automobile Dealers' Association; R. B. Wilson, Victoria, vice-president of the B.C. Motor Dealers' Association, and other leading officials in the industry.

On the question of lower license fees for cars, it was argued other provinces charged $10 to $15 less than the rates in B.C.

A lowering of the gasoline tax, the delegation stated, would make possible wider usage of the automobile, resulting in a probable increase in government revenue from this source.

The new highway financing policy suggested called for reinvestment in highway facilities all revenues from the motor vehicle.

The automobile industry, it was stated, feels the province's tax policy is a deterrent on the expanding use of the automobile.

"In fact," the delegation said, "it acts as a brake on an advancing standard of living for our people."

MOST HEAVILY TAXED

Personal transportation, as an important element in the standard of living, was the most heavily taxed commodity in the province.

The delegation estimated sale and the use of motor vehicles yielded more than $20,000,000 to the provincial treasury last year. This came from provincial sales tax, driving permits, police tests, gasoline taxes, licensing and registration fees.

In addition, the industry was burdened with 15 per cent federal excise tax and an additional 8 per cent federal sales tax.

Contract To Remodel Home As Haven For 28 Aged Women

With scores of applications already in for 28 vacancies, a $22,000 contract has been awarded to Luney Bros. and Hamilton for the remodeling of the former residence of Miss Kathleen Agnew, 1322 Rockland Avenue, which she has given for a home for aged women to be operated by the Women's Auxiliary of the Anglican Church.

The contractors are expected to start work soon on the large residence, situated on three and a half acres of land, early this spring.

Contractors will divide some of the large rooms into single bedrooms. For the present nothing will be done to the grounds.

The residence was originally built for Senator Bostock.

should be paid for by the league."

"There is no excuse by which blame can be attached to the city and it is entirely unjust that the taxpayers should have to bear the added expense," Mr. Gadsden wrote.

"The candidate that caused this unhappy situation was one of the accredited representatives of the Non-Partisan League machine, who have professed high civic ideals in the selection of representatives to make up their own slate for election to municipal offices, which slate has been supported by them to the exclusion of all others in the field."

"Many of the members of the present City Council are dependents of the above named Non-Partisan League, so this suggestion may not receive favorable consideration," wrote Mr. Gadsden.

"However, I assure you that there are many others among taxpayers, who join me in feeling that the expense of the forthcoming needless by-election should be paid for by the said league."

"My request as a taxpayer is that you protect the city in the above matter to the fullest extent possible," said Mr. Gadsden.

Greater Victoria Police Forces In Search For Woman

Saanich police have enlisted the aid of other forces of the area to be on the lookout for Lillian May Lane, 3421 Cook Street, who has been missing since Monday.

Police describe her as having light brown hair, grey eyes, wearing a grey coat, and carrying a black suede purse. She was reported to be despondent.

Anyone knowing the whereabouts of this woman is asked to contact police.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Law Student Engaged To Legal Secretary, Cries For Ideal Girl Loved And Left Year Ago

Dear Mary Haworth: I am a law student on the west coast, while my parents moved a year ago. Last year, while on summer vacation in the eastern city where we then lived, I came across Doris, a girl whom I hadn't seen for about four years; and inasmuch as she is about five years my junior, I'd never really noticed her before.

Doris and I went together whose company was welcome because I was trying to forget Doris. Kathy can never compare to Doris, yet she did grow on me, and in a short time she is to become my wife. According to Doris' letters, she is much in love with me, and although I feel sure she will forget me soon, I am still haunted by memories of her. Am I really in love with her? Or is she just an idealized image in my thoughts? B.G.

Mary Haworth

GUILTY CONSCIENCE SPOILED HIS LOVE

Dear B.G.: Apparently you are a pretty weak sister on the score of character, with an especially severe attack of pre-marital jitters, therefore. Almost every man on the threshold of marriage has moments of panic and indecision, wondering if he should go through with it or make a last-minute break for freedom.

You are a leaner-type, definitely, and possible Doris inclines that way herself; another reason why you would instinctively shy off from marrying her, no matter how much your heart cries for her. Perhaps she was too proud, or maybe too awed by your senior age and supposed sophistication, to plead for your protective allegiance. In any case, I gather that Kathryn is a girl of entirely different stripe. Probably she is older than you, if not in age, then in worldly experience, and I have an idea that she's been doggedly determined and confidently possessive in staking claim to you as "her man."

HE LIKES FINANCIER'S STEAM-ROLLER DRIVE

I daresay the steam-roller quality of Kathryn's character appeals to you as a form of strength, a kind of driving force that you feel you need in back of you, in domestic partnership, to take you where you want to go professionally. Quite literally and to a large extent, you let Kathryn do the thinking for both of you, insofar as the future is concerned; whereas Doris expected you to take the lead in making plans. Isn't that correct?

I think you are going to marry Kathryn, mainly because she has a knack of managing you, and because she is a decisive character who has made up her mind that she wants you, for the reason that your aims and talents synchronize with hers, and she foresees an agreeable future with you at her elbow. I believe you'll be happy with her, at least in the sense of feeling no pain, once you settle into the groove of grateful dependency upon her devoted conjugal rule. As for Doris, other loves will heal her grief, and she has need of a stronger man than you could ever be, in relation to sweetheart or wife. So my advise is—calm your distraction and stick to Kathryn.

YOUR BABY AND MINE
By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

There is seldom a neighborhood without some child the parents tend to cold-shoulder. The cause of their disapproval may stem from the child's religious or social background. His parents do not "belong," and so the child is to be ostracized.

One of the characteristics of a democracy is that people differ in their habits, their attitudes, their cultural and racial backgrounds. This is the way it is and it should be.

The whole value of these variations is lost if parents, for any number of reasons, turn up their noses at children who are different. This inspires in their own children a real fear of differences; a belief in the inferiority of some groups as opposed to others and an unrealistic sense of their own superiority and importance.

If children are different because of different family influences, they will be "good for" the group into which they are introduced. Even if they never conform, in the sense of giving up their own differences, they have a distinct value to the group. Through them other children become aware that here are delightful companions, despite their different ways. This is broadening and educational.

Children who grow up in tightly-knit groups of the same kind of children in a neighborhood with the same general customs, get no education in social differences. They do exist and children should be aware of them.

Our leaflet No. 46, "Good Manners," may be had by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of this newspaper.

There's only one topic of conversation these days with Australian housewives . . . the high cost of meat. One Sydney butcher, a little annoyed by a multitude of feminine complaints, tacked up a sign in his shop. It read: "Please limit abuse to five minutes."

Don't Dally After Diet
Keep Fit With Exercise
By PENNY SAVER

Have fun with that seven-day diet my good boss offered, a short time ago? It worked fine, you say, but like anything else when a thing is set in front of you, it is noticed; out of sight, it is quite forgotten. Now that you have trimmed your figure to a becoming slimness, how about encouraging it to stay that way with daily exercises? Think it's a good idea? Fine!

Rhythm exercises . . . with the piano accompaniment . . . are the answer. The fact that there might be a record album of this type in town, led me to one of our local music stores. Well, mam. I didn't find an album, but I was told that by merely placing an order with them the other cream needed is one to leave on. It should be extra-rich in lubricating oils.

The other cream needed is a cleanser that offers something extra in the way of softening oils.

The warmer itself, stands about 3 1/4 inches high and at the base, the same width in diameter.

To use the automatic electric warmer, first pour a teaspoonful of water in the warmer. Next, place the bottle in the warmer, and by the way it will hold any standard make of nursing bottle.

Then, when all the water has turned to steam, the bottle will be sufficiently heated and the current shuts off.

When you come to think of it . . . maybe Junior could operate the $3.95 bottle warmer himself!

It seems that's the way everything is made these days, "so simple that a child could work it," say the ads on anything from automobiles to bobby pins!

YOU CAN SMELL THE DIFFERENCE

Perhaps you think your wash is perfectly clean. Yet a faint "musty" odour often betrays the presence of invisible dirt, grease, scum left in clothes by ordinary suds. Scientific tests show Surf gets out this hidden cause of odour!

SURF-CLEAN . . . SWEETER! (Right)

Even if dried indoors! Yes, even without rinsing, Surf gets clothes cleaner and fresher than ever, even if dried indoors! Surf-cleans clothes of "dried clothes" odour. Surf-clean clothes are whiter, brighter . . . and so wonderfully fresh and sweet to smell!

TRY THIS LATEST
WASHDAY TRICK
IT'S SO EASY—
IT'S SO QUICK!

1. Even without rinsing, Surf-clean clothes are the cleanest clothes. But, better still, try adding a little Surf to your rinse water. This helps keep your clothes sweater longer.

2. This single light Surf-rinse is better than several clear-water rinsings. It's easier on your clothes, too. And, it leaves everything so wonderfully soft and easy to iron.

NO OTHER SUDS GETS CLOTHES WHITER, BRIGHTER . . . SO FRESH-AIR-SWEET AS SURF!

Tests show SURF gets out more dirt, grease and germs than any other leading washday suds! Gets clothes so clean you can actually smell the difference!

You can tell by the smell that your Surf-clean wash is deep-down sweet and clean. Not just whiter, not just brighter to look at—but sunshiny, fresh-air-sweet to smell, even if dried indoors.

Laboratory tests explain why this is so. They show that Surf—even without rinsing—actually gets out more dirt . . . the kind you can see and also "invisible dirt"—grease, germs and scum. Because it gets out this hidden dirt that other suds leave in your clothes, it gets out every trace of "dirty clothes" odour—far more than any other product tested.

Yet Surf is as gentle to hands and to fabric as it is hard on dirt. It contains a wonderful purifying ingredient that gently floats out even deep-down soil and odour . . . that lets you safely cut down or eliminate rinsing.

Keep several boxes on hand for laundry, kitchen, bathroom. You'll find Surf's faster, gentler, sweeter action saves time, work, water—and washables. Gives you the cleanest, sweetest washes ever. Yes, your eyes and your nose will tell you: If it's Surf-clean, it's really clean! Sweeter!

Guild Gives $1,000 To Church Fund, Reports Heard, Officers Re-Elected

A sum of $1,000 was reported paid into the building fund with a balance of more than $300 on hand, by Mrs. W. Ronald, treasurer, when members of St. David's Women's Guild, Cordova Bay, met recently for their annual meeting. Mrs. M. Fairclough, secretary, in her report, stated that 11 regular meetings and four special meetings had been held.

Mrs. C. B. Price, vice-president, stressed the importance of visiting by guild members in the growing community. New china, silver, linens and curtains were among items mentioned in a report by Mrs. K. M. Lewis, president of the guild.

Work of the junior auxiliary was presented in a report by Mrs. A. Taylor, leader of the group of 20 girls; Mrs. H. J. S. Reynolds, leader of the girls' auxiliary, reported on their activities and the sum of money spent for articles in the hall.

Visiting committee, including Mrs. Taylor, Mrs. H. Stevens and Mrs. Fairclough, reported many calls made and cards sent to patients in hospital. This committee was re-appointed for the year with Mesdames M. Ranger, J. Hutton and K. K. John as new members.

Officers were all re-elected. Rev. C. B. Price presided, and a vote of thanks for past work tendered by Mrs. F. French and M. A. Price.

Following the meeting, tea was served by Mesdames Taylor, Stevenson, Ranger, B. Dyer, Ronald and Fairclough.

members and guests sat down to a banquet served by committee of Sisters and Knights. Among guests were visitors from Winnipeg, Ladysmith and Qualicum.

The following officers were named: Mrs. Kay Scoular, past chief; Mrs. Janet Humphries, most excellent chief; Mrs. Beatrice Marshall, excellent senior; Mrs. Violet Maxwell, excellent junior; Mrs. Ethel Flint, manager; Mrs. Vera Mesher, secretary; Mrs. Minnie Urwin, treasurer; Mrs. Vera Barry, protector, and Mrs. May Heath, guard.

For the ceremony participants were gowned in white and wore corsage bouquets of red carnations. Mrs. Eveline Macdonald presided the piano during installation.

B. H. Wheatcroft, installing officer, named John Scoular as chancellor commander, and other officers of Far West Lodge No. 1.

Past chief's certificates were presented to Mrs. Kay Scoular, and to Miss Vera Mesher and Mrs. Unwin, who have completed an additional three years' service, by Mrs. Humphries, who also appointed her standing committee for the year. Mrs. Daisy Dodd was presented with a gift from the Temple for past services.

Junior Musical Arts Society, Saturday at 2.30, Newstead Realty Hall. Guest pianist, Charlotte Kay. Refreshments.

Following the ceremonies,

Knights, Pythian Sisters Hold Installation Ceremony

A joint installation ceremony of Island Temple No. 8, Pythian Sisters, and Far West Lodge No. 1, Knights of Pythias, was held recently at K. of P. Hall. Mrs. Stenna Hawkins, installing officer for Island Temple, was assisted by Mrs. Dora Elliott, grand senior, and Mrs. Mabel Stanley, grand manager.

The following officers were named: Mrs. Kay Scoular, past chief; Mrs. Janet Humphries, most excellent chief; Mrs. Beatrice Marshall, excellent senior; Mrs. Violet Maxwell, excellent junior; Mrs. Ethel Flint, manager; Mrs. Vera Mesher, secretary; Mrs. Minnie Urwin, treasurer; Mrs. Vera Barry, protector, and Mrs. May Heath, guard.

Friends of Miss Pat Prowd, Vancouver, well-known newspaper feature writer, will be interested to know she is leaving the mainland city on Jan. 20 for a three-month visit in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cox, and their two daughters, Madeline and Wendy, who have been staying at Mill Bay for the past few months are leaving this week for their home in Caracas, South America. The family plan to motor to New York by way of California, then to South America. Madeline and Wendy have been students at Strathcona Lodge School during their stay.

Junior Musical Arts Society, Saturday at 2.30, Newstead Realty Hall. Guest pianist, Charlotte Kay. Refreshments.

LEGION RUSHES CAMPAIGN FOR COMPULSORY SERVICE

SASK. LAWYER TO PAY $1,500 FOR B.C. CASE

VANCOUVER (CP) — It will cost John Diefenbaker, Saskatchewan criminal lawyer, $1,500 to appear in a British Columbia court.

Diefenbaker, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Lake Centre, Sask., is defence counsel in the case of John A. Atherton, 22-year-old telegraph operator, charged with manslaughter in the Canoe River train wreck.

He will have to be admitted to the British Columbia Bar before he can appear in Prince George, B.C., at Atherton's preliminary hearing.

The admittance price is $1,500.

Youth Leaves Religious Retreat

Unwillingly, Bob McLean, 16, yielded to the pleas of his mother and left the stone farmhouse at Keremeos, B.C., 150 miles east of Vancouver, where he had been secluded for two weeks with the "Children of Light" cult, awaiting the world's end or a message from God. His mother, Mrs. Clara Adelaide Mueller (right) was accompanied by her daughter, Yvonne, and an R.C.M.P. officer. (See story, Page 3.)

Track Income Ruled Not Deductible

OTTAWA (CP) — Racetrack winnings are taxable when betting is an integral part of the taxpayer's business, the Income Tax Appeal Board ruled today in a decision breaking new ground in this country.

Board member Fabio Monet, in handing down that decision, also expressed the view that track losses under the same circumstances should be deductible from taxable income. However, that point was not part of the case at issue.

Up to now, the government had not sought to levy on track winnings. Nor had it permitted deductions for losses at the betting wickets.

The board's verdict was handed down in the case of James Badame, a Toronto horseman who beat the horses for $4,435 in 1947 and $4,907 in 1948 and tried to have these amounts subtracted from his taxable income. The board turned him down.

Monet's decision on the taxability of winnings now becomes law unless it should be reversed on appeal to the Exchequer Court. His opinion on the question of deducting track losses is not binding, and that point remains to be ruled on in any later case in which it is involved specifically.

Jet Pilot Killed In Quebec Crash

BOUCHERVILLE, Que. (CP) — An R.C.A.F. jet vampire plane crashed near here today, killing the pilot. The plane belonged to the 410 fighter squadron.

The pilot was identified as F.O. William Ainsley Joy of Toronto. The Vampire jet fighters carry only one person.

Boucherville is on the south shore of the St. Lawrence River, about 10 miles east of Montreal.

Allied Bomber Attack Disperses Red Forces

TOKYO (AP) — Allied air attacks and artillery barrages drove off a 6,000-man North Korean force today after it had seized a dominant height and poured withering fire into American lines just south of Wonju.

An AP field dispatch said the two North Korean regiments at nightfall were disappearing into the hills.

Uruguay Terms Are Declared Too High

VANCOUVER (CP) — Wimpy Jones, recently released by Vancouver Canucks of the Pacific Coast Hockey League, today was signed by Kerrisdale Monarchs of the Mainline-Okanagan Senior League. He will probably play in tonight's game against Kelowna.

Jones' release was the result of the proposed terms as exorbitant and sent off a letter with counter-proposals: Full expenses to and from Los Angeles and $5,000. Uruguay plans to play in Los Angeles the first week in July.

Monarchs Sign Jones

VANCOUVER (CP) — Wimpy Jones, recently released by Vancouver Canucks of the Pacific Coast Hockey League, today was signed by Kerrisdale Monarchs of the Mainline-Okanagan Senior League. He will probably play in tonight's game against Kelowna.

The pilot was identified as F.O. William Ainsley Joy of Toronto. The Vampire jet fighters carry only one person.

Boucherville is on the south shore of the St. Lawrence River, about 10 miles east of Montreal.
